

Centerstone is a leading national, not-for-profit provider of community-based behavioral healthcare. They offer a full range of mental health services, including substance abuse treatment and intellectual and developmental disabilities services.

With an employee count of more than a thousand, the Human Resources department required a more streamlined process for the onboarding of new hires.

Powered by the Converence platform, Centerstone transitioned from paper-based HR forms and Excel spreadsheet content to an online form capturing the same data digitally with the Connect solution. With Connect, Centerstone was able to link the data directly to their backend systems, eliminating dual data entry and allows for real time data integration. In addition, Trinisys updated the Centerstone workflow process allowing the organization to store the data in a backend system for historical purposes. Moving to a paperless HR process has saves the organization time, effort and reduces the turnaround time to respond to new hires.

“With a distributed workforce, technology support and ease is a critical need for human resources. Trinisys quickly and effectively created a solution that we are able to utilize on a go-forward basis offering true efficiency to a formally manual process.”
